JOHN BULL'S EASTERN PEARL.

The following is from the "John Bull Over-Seas" journal, and shows the interest taken at home in affairs concerning our Territory.

One of John Bull's possessions that cannot help coming into prominence in the near future is British North Borneo, Most Englishmen have hazy notions about Borneo, which they merely associate with stories of piracy and head-hunting and the white Rajah Brooke of Sarawak. Possibly, too, some of them have smoked Borneo cigare, and voted them to be as good in texture and flavour as anything grown by Havana. How many have taken their atlas and studied the geographical position of Borneo and discovered that it is tactically a salient point in the Pacific? It is so, and presently I shall show that Borneo has features that must one day be recognised by a British Government, for here we have an island that not only offers a base in the Pacific, but is capable of being cheaply turned into a coaling station and provided with wet and dry docks and all the provisions of the foundry necessary for the repairs of our fleet in Eastern waters in peace or war time,

The history of the taking over of British North Borneo is a history of much interest, and the earlier chapters read like a boy's book of adventures. Over one hundred years ago the old East India Company had a footing at Balambangan Island in the north; but the natives did not like their presence, and in the year 1773 the Sulu pirates evicted John and Company, and with him all white men. Down to comparatively recent years the island was the home of piracy, battle, murder, and sudden death-

The Illunan pirates put to sea in their vessels, and with the sea robbers of China, the Malay Peninsula, and contiguous countries, lay in wait for merchantmen, and provided those stories of ocean fights, throat-slitting, and walking the plank that thrilled our blood when we were small boys, and made us either want to go off and sail under the skull and crossbones ensign, or throw the Union Jack to the breeze on our gaff and give fight to the "Jolly Rovers," whose possible whereabouts added to the anxiety of our skippers by making them keep a night and day look-out for the footpade of the ocean.

Possibly it was such a desire that made young W. C. Cowie, who, with four companions, sailed from Scotland in 1870 for the Far East, not on a ten thousand ton liner, but on a mere launch, the Argyll, of fourteen tons burden, turn his mind to blood-smeared Borneo, but one suspects that it was rather a love of adventure than his own. This little craft measured 58 feet long, with a beam of only 9 feet. She was manned by five hands, and, after her arrival in Borneo waters, she was armed with a couple of small Armstrong gons and a Vavascur piece.

The adventurers faced many a peril, and many a time ascaped being swallowed up in the maw of the sea; but in the end got to Singapore safely. The Argyll, by the way, went by the Suez Canal, and was amongst the first vessels that over went through the "Ditch," which had then been opened only a few months.

The five parted company in Singapore. Young Cowie, after cruising about the Rhio and Archipelago for about two years, went to Borneo, and was the first white man to establish a settlement there since the East India people were expelled, a century before. He settled on the island of Timbang, in Sandakan Bay, now an important place, and, knowing the kind of people he had come among, he at once fortified his settlement. He chose an excellent strategical position for his store, which he palisaded and provided with two drawbridges. One of the early problems was what to do with the island now he had settled on it. An idea struck Cowie. The Spaniards were engaged in blockading certain Sulu Islands, and the excitement of blockade running was too promising to be missed. Hence the fortnightly voyages made up coast by W. C. Cowie and some of his hands, while the remainder held the fortified station on Timbang Island, were extended to the Sulu Archipelago, the Argyll successfully getting through the Spanish lines and clearing away with a cargo of mother-of pearl and other wares every time.

Previously to this some Americans had endeavoured to start a company on the north-west coast of Borneo, but they had failed luckily for Great Britain. The materials for the formation of a successful trading company were abundantly to hand, but probably the Yankee adventurers did not like their native neighbours, and, in (Continued on Page 3.)

truth, there was little that was lovable about such neighbours. Cradled and nursed and bred among bloodshed, they wore as sayage as the people of the Solomon Islands are to-day. The tops and marbles of civilisation were unknown, and the early toy of the young Dyak was the blow-pipe, from which he learnt to blow darts with such precision that he could hit a hird on the wing every time. Of course he became a healigan, and when he reached this state he lurked about in the jungle and waited for somebody he wanted to lay low; and the laying low was done with a poisoned dart. The chief occupation of the Bornean, when he was not practising piracy on the high seas; was head-hunting ashore, and the Dyak was as keen about collecting heads as a cortain type of tripper is of trophying nick-nacks from our steamers and hotels. The father of a family in Borneo could not leave his but for half an hour and return with a fraction of a certainty of finding his wife and children alive. Such was the Borneo to which Cowie had come in November, 1872. It was ruled by Sultans, it was peopled by cut-throats, and it was no place for a handful of white men whose nerves were not of the toughest of tough steel wire. But the plucky adventurer set out to reform matters, and reform them he did. He talked to the Sultan of Sulu about the benefits of civilisation, and the Sultan listened. He even agreed with Cowie that useless slaughter did the island no good, and that, in those days of swift cruisers and the presence of busybody warships in Eastern waters the business of piracy did not pay as well as previously.

Then the commercial instinct was instilled into the Sultan of Sulu by his white instructor, with the result that Cowio was instrumental in influencing him in granting the concession which, after some-years, gave birth to the Chartered Company of British North Borneo. Note how W. C. Cowie-the man with the strong face and iron jaw-set about arranging matters. He did not begin by wiping out the natives with maxim and He did not burn down the Sulu huts and hunt the chiefs out to die in a swamp. He did not not the part of chartered free booter. He took the Sultanthe Lobenguela of Borneo - into partnership. He did not say, "You will be governed by men in London and their representatives here and you will be placed under new laws, which you do not understand, and you must pay heavy taxes for being alive, and enjoying our living here and taking your land. We will put a very big force of armed white men to live among you and in you are not good they will put you in gaol or shoot you." No. He did the sensible He agreed to pay the Sultan an annual sum, and he took the chiefs into the employment of the company. He made the chiefs responsible for the good order of their villages, and while he upset none of the legitimate customs to which the natives were used, he, by influencing the Sultan and headmen, quite stamped out head-hunting and piracy, and turned the Dyak into a model

Outside the native laws that were sllowed to remain, the Indian penal code was introduced for the government of white man and native alike, and the police force for the entire country as large as Ireland is a mixed body of Sikhs and Dyaks about 600 strong. As for him if he imports or exports goods yielding a revenue equal to the two shillings and four-pence. The native generally markets taxes, the native is asked for a poll tax of a revenue equal to the two shillings and four-pence. The native generally manages Messas JARDINE, MATHESON & Co., = about Mex. $5,900,000. to save his dollar, and unlike the Rhodesian native, who has to pay half a sovereign with no possibility of having a farthing of it returned to him, the Dyak does not resent the tax-hardly even thinks of it. Weoften ask, Will acertain other country ruled by Downing Street and London Wali combined over become a valuable national asset? The same question may be asked concerning North Borneo. The answer is, undoubtedly, yes, and for a variety of reasons. There is an Imperial reason. If ever we are at war in Eastern waters, Borneo will be an important base, and one is justified in taking up a little extra space in John Bull Over-Seas to deal with this point. Borneo is the natural base for our ships in Eastern waters, and from a strategical point of view it is as important at present in the occupation of the Adas Malta. The coastline is toothed with miralty. harbours providing safe holding ground with good soundings. There are facilities for constructing dry and wet docks for the use of warships crippled or otherwise, and there is an unlimited supply of steam coal, so that a coaling station might be formed at the very pit's mouth at Cowie Harbour at less than half the cost of a coal depot fed with coal seaborne from Wales. The wonder is that one of our Governments did not, years ago, see the immense value of Borneo from this point of view; but is possible that somebody in power will vot waken up, and Borneo will take the important place it should take in our Empire scheme. Then there is the commercial point of view. Borneo is one of those places where you tickle the ground with a hoe and it smiles with a harvest .- The native who is inclined to be lazy need only work one month a year and live in idleness on the fat of the land for eleven. But there

His Lordship pointed out that under the English law an infant could have his cake and eat it as well, and that was what had happened in the present case, though why the law should be applied to Chinese he failed to understand. Mr Slade then went on to quote cases in support of his contention. It was laid down that the Privy Council would not entertain any appeal on the question of costs alone, but if a real appeal on the merits of the case were allowed then the Privy Council could consider the question of costs. Costs were in the discretion of the Judge and the only matter which the Privy Council would have to decide was whether or not the discretion had been wisely exercised, and it was laid down that it would not entertain such a thing.

Mr Pollock contended that the costs involved were a sum or matter at issue. In making the order as to costs the Chief Justice gave special leave to appeal and the matter came before the Full Court as the subject matter at issue. There it was argued and it still remained the matter at issue, the appellants being desirous of taking it further. They were appealing from the judgment in the Full Court upon the only matter that was at issue there. Regarding the argument that the Privy Council would not entertain the aside without putting both parties in the appeal, Mr Pollock submitted it would have to go to the Privy Council to have the point determined. Appellants rested their case entirely upon the want of jurisdiction and it was neither necessary. nor respectful for them to argue on that point now. The decision had been given and the Court knew the appellant's views.

First Annual Dinner in London.

(From Our Corresponden!.)

LONDON, June 28. The promoters of he China Society in this metropolis have every reason to be pleased with the success of their efforts during the firs year of activities. With a memberhave all along been most gratifying, but the first annual dinner in the Empire Rooms of the Trocadero Restaurant on Monday evening easily outstripped all records. Practically every member was a joyial gathering and the hum of conver-

In addition they were able to study more of the thoughts suggested by Chinese. history and literature, and also to make things more pleasant in London for the growing numbers of young Chinese gentlemen who had come for a term of study or business in England.

Sir Walter Hillier in proposing the health of the chairman in enlogistic terms referred to him as the greatest authority in Europe on Chinese literature. It was an honour to have him as first president of the Society and it was with regret that they knew that he was closing a long and distinguished career with a view to a little repose. They koped to have him amongst them many times in the future in spite of that. Sir Robert Douglas feelingly replied

That concluded the speaking, and the business part of the meeting was then taken. It was brief, as befitted a gathering of men whose fair companions at the dinner had retired to the reception room, whence came merry laughter. It was an admirable influence for despatch and in a very short time the finances of the Society were declared to be satisfactory and the officers lind been re-elected with

EXPLORING TIBET.

Dr. Sven Hedin has succeeded in his determination to explore beyond Lhassa. He started from Chinese Turkestan, and it travels across the border to Tibet Novertheless, travelling for eighty-four days in a solitude like that of an Arctio winter, chrough mountain ranges equally uninha bited, Dr. Hedin, reached the sacred city of Shigatse. The place is 130 miles further than Libassa, and Dr. Hedin says that his journey has been the most wonderful he had ever had. Not a single man in his company died, but his entire caravau or canols and horses perished.

Hacc dim meminisse humbil. The CHINA MAIL of the 17th July, 1845, is almost entirely taken up with Government. Ordinances, most of which have no interest at this date, says the "Shangha Mercury" in quoting from our old issues. as it does on an aspect of Chinese literature | Their nature may be sufficiently gathered seldom dilated upon. Mr Ball has, too, from the following editorial comment upon "The Covernment Ordinances and Notifications in thisday's publication occupy so much space as to exclude overy other to the many contributions tending yowards subject except a few remarks upon the late intelligence from England, unaccompanied by extracts from the newspapers, which is is however of little consequence, as most of our readers must be already in possession. of all the news they contain.

"The Ordinance for giving greater facilities for the administration of justice in the Consular Courts, in certain extremo cases, we trust will not be often brought into requisition.

"The Ordinance to amond No. 21 or 1844 more clearly defines the privileges of the opium farmer, rendering it illegal to retail the drug in less quantities than one chest, whether for consumption or not, ship of about two hundred and strong the looser wording of the repealed social attractions, as well as the more Ordinance having, as we anticipated, serious interests of study, the gatherings rendered conviction very difficult. Since it is determined to retain the tax it is highly expedient that all doubts be removed as to the manner of its operation.

"The Ordinance for doubling the amount payable upon licenses for Public Houses seems more calculated to restrict their number and increase their respectability PERFORMANCES EVERY NIGHT, than to augment the Colonial Treasury and if such be the effect of the measure, most people will approve of it; though we humbly conceive that this end might be more certainly obtained by exercising greater strictness in granting such licenses, whatever might be the sum demanded for

The Ordinance for licensing the retailers of tobacco and snuff, appears to have nothing to commend it. It is a mere nibbling at small things, and so far as we can judge is neither calculated to swell the exchequer nor amond the habits of the community. Almost everybody smokes and almost nobody purchases cheroots in less quantity than one thousand at a time one who carries a box, and if there really be such remarkable persons in the Colony it seems to be cruel and impolitic in the

How the Emperor Abdicated

(N.C. DAILY NEWS SERVICE.) TOKYO, July 19. Yielding to the Emperor's repeated summons, Marquis Ito was received in audience yesterday without waiting for Viscount Hayashi's arrival. The Ministers continued to urge the Emperor to abdicate. Last night the Emperor summoned the Kofean Elder Statesmen to a consultation. Afterwards, at a joint audience of Elder Statesmen and Ministers, the Emperor consented to the proposed abdication. The ceremony of abdication was to take place early in the morning, and at ten o'clock a Rescript was to be issued announcing the accession of the Crown Prince of Korea. The abdication of the Emperor of Korea was delayed, but finally completed on Saturday in the forencon. The Emperor nominally deputes the Crown Prince to act for him, but in reality the abdication is Anti-Japanese societies in Koren, troops and military students broke out in insurrection vesterday, and there were many casualties among Japanese policemen. The Emperor has asked for the suppres sion of the Japanese Resident-General: Japanese troops have been called out and are guarding the Paluce and the streets. Many natives of Scoul are fleeing. Japaneso in the interior of the country are in a state of uncasiness. The Minister of Education at Seoul has been arrested, pro-

Japanese conspiracy. The disquietude among the military is due to rumours of Japan's intention to carry away the Emperor. The Emperor abdicated before Marquis Ito had presented his demands, which are now forthcoming. They contain no referonce to abdication, which, indeed, was not included in Japan's programme. The new Emperor is described as being mentally impotent.

McGREGOR BROS. & GOW. Hongkong, July 22, 1907.

JOHN BULL'S EASTERN PEARL.

of the island, and anny millions of tons have been proved under surface by horing. It has been tested by merchant stempers, and found to be very excellent hard steam coal, unlike the friable coals found elsewhere in the East, which crumble when placed in ships' bunkers. More valuable still, a smokeless steam coal, the very thing neededforour warships; exists. The Admira of the Fleet on the China station has ordered a test, and it is a certainty that Borneo will in the near future supply not only the merchant stehmers that are coming for coal in increasing, numbers, but all our warships in Eastern waters. Extremely rich deposits of iron ore and manganese have also been found, as well as, limestone, and there are, therefore, possibilities of an iron and steel industry in Borneo that would be second to few other producing districts. The coal and iron practically lie side by side within each of fine harbours, and Chinese labour, which 1267 is cheap, can be procured in abundance.

Cotton grows prolifically both as perennial and an annual, but planters profer to grow tobacco and rubber. About four thousand acres of rubber were sown last year with the seed of the Para variety, and the trees have grown at the rate of one foot per month. Here is another instance of a company that fosters industry and does not choke or repel it. The Court of Governor's of British North Bornes advance interest at the rate of five per cent. on any capital sank until the unproductive period-in the case of rubber six years- is over. They are repaid when the produce comes, but only ask for their money when the shareholders have been paid six per cent. The value of the tobacco exported last year was over £200,000. 1

The Bornean benefits are not exhausted yet. The island yields a variety of most valuable timber, including a tree whose wood is little inferior to mahogany; another that is as hard as iron, with a fine grain, that will stand the open air even without being protected with paint, Every town and estate of importance is linked up by telegraph and telephone line, and the railways are being extended and deviated here and there to open out the country. Here is a last comparison between British North Borneo and Rhodesia. In Borneo your profits are your own; in Rhodesia the company comes in and taps them. In Borneo you get the CONSIGNEES of Cargo from London finest of land for an average of 30s. un acre. ox B.S. Charente and Medoc; from or free, if you introduce new agricultural Ville d' diras, in connection acre per annum. In Rhodesia the prices,

TALE OF A HAT.

The King And Mark Twain.

London, June 24. "Is it true that you kept your hat on when you met the King on Saturday and slapped him on the back while you were talking and laughing with him?" was asked of Mark Twain, directing his attention to a paragraph in a London Sunday paper in which these solecisms were goodnaturedly alleged against him.

"I'll tell you just what took place, said Mark Twain, "When I recalled my , acquaintance with the Queen, I took off my hat and made my lowest how. 'Put on your hat; put on your hat,' said the Queen, fearing, I suppose, I would eatch cold. But I didn't obey her, and we continued our conversation, I remaining uncovered. "Presently the Queen told me again; to put on my hat, and her tone was such that I could with gallantry no longor disregard her injunction.

Almost immediately thereafter I was presented to King Edward, and, remen bering the Queen's command, kept on my hat. I did not feel at liberty to do anything different."

"And did you slap the King on the back?" TNo, of course 1 did not. The King put his hand on my arm, and not to be outdone, even hy a sovereign, I went a bit higher and laid my hand on his shoulder. Each of us meant to honour the other in this laying on of hands."

A SICKLY STATION-MASTER

MADE STOUT AND STRONG BY DR. WILLIAMS' PINK PILLS

ANARMIA WAS HIS TROUBLE.

MR. KAM SIAR CHUAS, Station Master at Bukit Mertajam, on the Federated Malay States Railway, owes his present good health and robust, happy appearance to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. "Some years ago I fell into a decline," said Mr. Kam Siak Chuan. "So weak and miserable did I become that I had great difficulty in attending to my duties as Station-master on this railway. Frequently I had to get leave of absence from work. I always felt tired out; I was miserably thin and bloodless, there was a mesty taste in my mouth which indicated that my digestion was out of

"One day I received a little book telling about the cures wrought by Dr. Williams Pink Pills. I decided to give these Pills a trial. By the time I had taken two bottles of them, I folt decidedly better, so

Mr. Kam Siak Chuan. Cured of Anaemia and Debility by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

I went on using them, regaining strongth and getting healthier and stouter as I did so, until at last I found myself quite restored. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills undoubtedly gave me a fresh start in life. Since they cured mo I have never suffered from any sickness."

Mr. Kam Siak Chuan's trouble was Anaemia (weak watery blood). Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cured him by building up his blood, making it seen at the Office of the Colonial Secretary pure and rich and good. In the same way of Hongkong, or of the Undersigned, through the blood-these Pills have cured thousands of sufferers from Liver Complaint, Indigestion, Debility, Early Decay, Headaches, Paralysis, Beri-beri, Rheumstism, Sciatica, Eczema, Scrofula Boils, Skin Eruptions, Heart Disease, Malaria, and the after effects of Fevers, Dysentery and Chills. Dr. Williams Pink Pills are also the great remedy for the special ailments for which girls and women suffer, and to men broken down by overwork, excesses, or residence in unhealthy climates they speedily restore vigorous health. Obtainable at most shops where medicines are sold, and also direct from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Singapore, who send 1 bottle for $1.50 or 6 bottles for $8/- post free to any address.

Hand Became Swollen and Very Red and Painful -Arm Gradually Affected Up to Elbow-Impossible to Give Idea of Agony Undergone for Three Years - Doctor and Very Many Remedies Fail.

CURED BY TWO SETS OF CUTICURA REMEDIES

"My trouble started with swelling in my right hand; which became red and very painful and irritating. This swelling spread gradually up the arm until it reached the cibow. It is impossible for me to give any idea of the agony I went through during the three years that this eczema continued. I tried first one remedy and then another, only too glad to test anything that my friends suggested. Nothing seemed to be of the least good. I went to a doctor for four weeks in the provinces, where I was living at the time, and the treatment living at the time, and the treatment he put mo under was as ineffectual as the rest. I was almost in despair. One day I happened to catch sight of an advertisement of Cuticura Remedies, and there I read of a case of ecretar having been cured by the use of Cubl-cura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent Pills. The case was so similar to my own that I thought I would at least make one more try to get my arm right. I hought the whole treatment of the chemist, and I persevered with it for a week. By that time the improvement was apparent to any one, and the relief I felt myself was great. I should not have believed it possible for any remedy to afford such comfort in so short a time. My experience with the other remedies for eczema—and I should think I tried them all—enables me to appreciate Cuticura to the full. By the doctor's Cuticura to the full. By the doctor's orders I was keeping my arm in a sling for many menths, but the sling was seen disponsed with when I started with Cuticura. I persovered with Cuticura Soap, Cintment, and Pills for about a couple of months, using in all two complete treatments, and I can tell you candidly and heartily that I was cured. I have occasion to have great faith in Cuticura in skin ailments, not only because of the great good it has done me, but because of the benefit I know has accrued from its use in other cases. Mr. T. S. Gillard, 3, Hetley Read, Cases. Mr. T. S. Gillard, 3, Hetley Road, Shepherd's Bush, London, Nov. 10, '06."
